PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Documentation and communications professional with a Master's in Technical and Professional Communication, specializing in translating complex, multi-step processes into clear, audience-specific guidance. Experienced organizing and maintaining documentation libraries, writing distinct content for different user personas (faculty, clients, funders, institutional stakeholders), and producing procedural guides, reports, and usability findings grounded in structured research. Skilled at editing for clarity, consistency, and tone across internal and external audiences, and at translating technical and process-heavy information into content non-experts can act on. Comfortable moving fast in dynamic, cross-functional environments and quick to learn new domains, tools, and platforms.

CORE SKILLS

Documentation & Content Organization: structuring and maintaining documentation libraries, content trackers, style/voice consistency across a growing body of content, version-to-version content updates.

Complex-to-Clear Translation: translating technical, regulatory, and process-heavy information into plain-language guidance for non-expert audiences.

Persona-Based & Audience-Specific Writing: authoring distinct content for different reader types (faculty, institutional stakeholders, funders, clients, external partners) with tailored tone and depth.

Procedural & User Guide Writing: step-by-step guides, usability reports, recommendations documents, and instructional content grounded in research findings.

Editing & Quality Review: editing for clarity, accuracy, tone, and consistency; proofreading and content QA across recurring deliverables.

Cross-Functional Collaboration: partnering with subject-matter experts, faculty, clients, and stakeholders to gather accurate information and produce reliable content quickly.

Tools & Platforms: Google Workspace, Microsoft Office Suite, WordPress, Squarespace, Wix, HTML/CSS, Jira, Box, Microsoft Project, Oracle, Canva, Adobe Creative Suite; quick to learn new documentation and AI-assisted tools.
